Sophomores and beanied freshmen go into hysterics over the antics of the judges, guilty persons, and prosecutors at Kangaroo Court.

Freshmen girls take a break from moving in and unpacking to explore the campus and downtown Keyser.

A new year begins

Puffing men and women loaded with suitcases, trunks, and teddy bears reached their assigned dorms and plopped their loads down on the stripped beds in the barren-looking rooms. Strangers helped strangers unload their year's supply of crackers, peanut butter, and living essentials; and through helping each other, the strangers became friends. Sophomores heartily greeted old classmates and friends after a summer's separation. High school rivals forgot their differences as freshmen became accustomed to college life and united their efforts for Potomac State. Men and women from varied backgrounds and different areas came together and, thus, the school year 1971-72 began for the coed Potomac State College.

The bewilderment of buying books shows on the faces of Debbie Ervin and Gig Mastroguiseppe.

College life begins

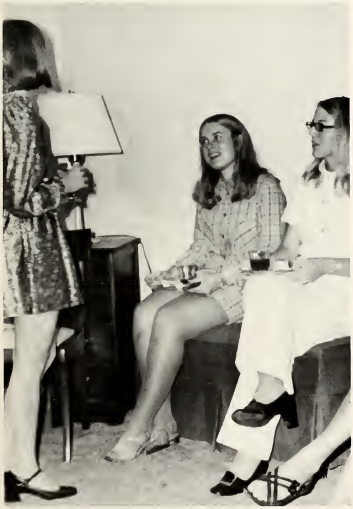
Students settled into a new life — college life — a world of study, sororities and fraternities, union-centered activities, and new friendships. Gone were the leisure days and early hours of high school work. Ignorance died as professors taught latest methods, philosophies, and literary works causing students to think and ideas to be born — ideas that in later years grew into living works of knowledge such as master theses. As the days passed by, each moment became a living memory or a treasured experience for the members of Potomac State.

Life

Death

Students relax to the bing-bing of the pinball machine and the vibrant music of the jukebox in the union between classes.

Large maples cast their shadows on the campus and provide shady gathering spots for students.



Ellie Sue Wells discusses the advantages of sorority affiliation with Cheryl Haines and Lilly Pat Golden at a rush party.

Jimmy Biddle scratches his head while contemplating the equations for the reaction of sulfuric acid with different metals.

Infinity

A year's knowledge lasts an infinity

From class to class the students went, learning new and different things in each one and yet accumulating just a fraction of the infinite mass of knowledge in the world. At first everything seemed so unconnected and useless, and then it began to happen: students noticed that what was learned in one class could be used in another one and in daily situations. These things, learned and applied by the students, were passed on to each person the students came in contact with. Thus, knowledge gained at Potomac State during one year lasted an infinity.

Students stop to chat for a few minutes between classes.

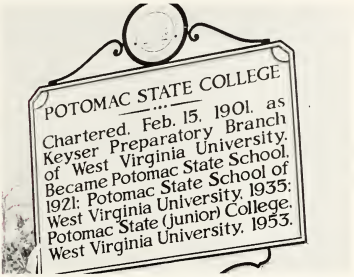
Mr. Reynolds instructs Allan Watson on how to find the room that will be his for the next eight months.

Potomac State celebrates its 50th year

There was an empty hilltop in Keyser seventy years ago. Two buildings, the Administration Building and Davis Hall, arose on that hilltop; and the preppies went through it on their way to West Virginia University barely noticed at first. Then in 1921, the school had gained so much recognition that it became a junior college and for fifty years has grown until today that hilltop has twelve buildings with planned landscaping and is no longer empty.

The original Administration Building, which was the first class building, is no longer standing.

The new Administration Building, completed in 1919, is used for business and faculty offices and classrooms.



POTOMAC STATE COLLEGE
Chartered, Feb. 15, 1901, as Keyser Preparatory Branch of West Virginia University.
Became Potomac State School,
1921; Potomac State School of
West Virginia University, 1935;
Potomac State (junior) College,
West Virginia University, 1953.

The sign at the foot of the hill tells Potomac State's history.

Autumn comes to the college on the hilltop.

Davis Hall, completed in 1914 as a coed dorm, now houses only boys and provides a place for the college cafeteria.

Reynolds Hall, built in 1925 as a dorm and classroom, serves as the other dormitory for women.

Friend Hall, constructed in 1963, houses 100 women on campus.

The Student Union steps, where Kangaroo Court is held, serves as the place of punishment for disobedient freshmen.

Memorial Hall, built in 1956, is the site of many memories of the men's social life for years to come.

As enrollment increases, the college grows

The Student Union, under the direction of Mr. Fred Pearman, provides recreation and relaxation for Potomac State students.

The gym furnishes a place for physical development as well as mental stimulation.

Friend Hall, the modern dormitory, serves the girls with all the conveniences of today.

As the years rapidly passed, Potomac State College became more and more popular and gained the enrollment of students from far-away states and countries. With this increasing growth in enrollment and the needed additions to curriculum, the two-building campus was no longer adequate; and more permanent buildings were required. Reynolds Hall, which served as a classroom and a dormitory until the construction of the Science Hall, was the first of the women's dormitories to be built. Physical education classes, judo, ballroom dancing, and intramural sports called for a gym. The Student Union, hauled in from Camp Patrick Henry, met the need for a student activity center. Memorial Hall and Friend Hall, the modern dormitories, solved the boarding problems. Thus, necessity prodded the college into growth.

ALMA MATER

Potomac State, Potomac State
Our Alma Mater dear,
We'll sing thy praises far and wide,
For Gold and Blue we'll cheer.
Potomac State, Potomac State,
May thine the honor be,
Thy sons and daughters live for thee.
All hail, Potomac State.

—Paul Rouzer

Students find the library a nice place to study or to just browse through books and magazines.

The Church-McKee Arts Center, finished in 1967, provides facilities for teaching the cultural aspect of life.

The bookstore, which is located under the library, takes care of student needs for books and school supplies.

Give us wide walls
to build a house of life,
a floor of humility,
and a ceiling of infinity.

—Adapted from Dr. Perry Gresham's speech commemorating PSC's 50th anniversary

Students make college life student life

Meal ticket numbers, student ID card numbers, room numbers, box numbers, — numbers, numbers, numbers, — became more a part of the students' lives as they stepped into the college world, the adult and business world. Freshmen became accustomed to the awkward sound of being called on formally in class as Miss or Mister. Sophomores succumbed to the loss of informality again. Thus, students were lost in the masses; yet, each individual kept his identity, showed his emotions over victories and disappointments at games, dances, convocations, and in classes, and contributed according to his personality to make college life student life.

Miss Janie Larmoyeux, at right, talks with Claudia, a new student, and her father, Earl R. Clendenin.

Registration is the beginning

The end of registration brings the start of classes.

Registration was the entire beginning of the long year ahead. It began early and lasted late. After meeting teachers and other students, talking with advisers, getting class tickets, paying for the schooling, and last but not least, getting college ID cards, frustrated students rested in the dorms and sought used and new books on campus. Registration day, a day to be remembered and dreaded by the students each semester, finally was over and classes began.

"Don't tell me that class is closed, too!"

Shame on Joe Nichols; Kangaroo Court strikes.

Faculty Follies gives a quick preview of faculty members' talents.

"Dancing is a good way to get acquainted; so don't just stand there; dance!"

Freshman Week is the indoctrination

There were several activities planned during Freshman Week to help bring the new students out of their shyness. Activities such as plays, concerts, shows, and movies were planned to prevent boredom. A get-acquainted dance was held on Wednesday of Freshman Week; from then on no one was lonesome. The first performance of the Faculty Follies gave students a glimpse of their teachers.

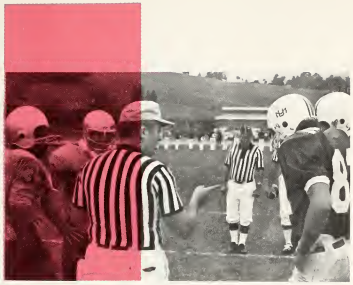
The Alumni Association welcomes everyone to Potomac State College during its 50th year celebration.

"Let's raise the spirits and cheer the Cats to victory!" chant the enthusiastic cheerleaders at the pep rally.

Homecoming brings many activities

Team supporters give a seven gun salute to the team, one for each touchdown.

Miss Catamount XXXIII stands proudly as the Potomac State College band plays the Alma Mater.



The team captains receive last minute instructions from the referees, and the game begins.

Homecoming was the time of year when all past graduates returned to Potomac State College campus to see their old friends and the changes in the grounds. Some of the activities held during the Homecoming weekend of the 50th year of P.S.C. were a bonfire and a pep rally on Friday night. Saturday's activities began with the parade at 10:30 a.m., followed by a reception at the Union for the Alumni and friends. The game got underway at 2:00 p.m. and ended in a victory with a score of 57-6 against the Marshall University Freshman Team. The evening was iced by a Victory Dance sponsored by the Student Government.

P.S.C. presents Miss Catamount and her court

Queen Lynn Mortimer shows gratitude to her loyal subjects, Potomac State College students and supporters.

During half-time Miss Catamount XXXIII receives her crown and flowers and is made an honorary Lt. Colonel of ROTC.

During the half-time of the Homecoming game, Lynn Mortimer, Miss Catamount XXXIII by popular vote of the student body, and her court, Karen Perkins and Deborah Thayer were presented to all who attended. Lynn was crowned by the Theta Sigma Chi fraternity and made an honorary Lieutenant Colonel of ROTC.

"Come, come, Flipote; it's time I left this place."

"Such goodness cannot be!"

"Oh no! We're on." "Good luck everyone. Break a leg." "Gosh I'm scared." Such were the remarks of the actors and actresses in Molière's, Tartuffe, presented in October. Tartuffe, a French comedy that deals with religious hypocrisy in the 17th century, was written in rhyming couplets and was wittingly presented by the Players dressed in elaborate garb.

"Daughter, I mean it; you're to be his wife."

Players present Tartuffe

"We'll use all manner of means, and all at once."

"Where are you? Where are you, Daddy? Here's your Scotch."

"What is it, darling? Has something gone wrong? What can't you move?"

and Black Comedy

Mr. Brindsley Miller's apartment in South Kensington, London, was the setting for the play, Black Comedy. There was complete darkness. Two voices were heard, giving the impression of two people walking around a room with absolute confidence, as if in the light. Then a fuse blew, throwing the actors into darkness and the audience into light. The play ended with the lights reconnected (with a dark stage).

Harold talks to Miss Furnival, "Anyway, she's got in her hands a vase I'd sold her last week — it was a birthday present," as Brindsley carries the furniture back into Harold's room.

"I like to think of that piece as representing the two needles of man's unrest. Self Love and Self Hate. They lead to the same point, do you see?"

Carol Caloccia and Don Heishman melt candle wax for use in Christmas decorations.

Sue Gayman puts her artistic ability to use by painting Santa's reindeer in wax on the cafeteria window.

Christmas season brightens up the campus

Santa, Isaac Knicely, holds two little boys and listens intently to their Christmas wishes at the Home Ec. Christmas party.

As exam time and the end of the semester approached, students found happiness and excitement in preparing for the Christmas season. Blinking lights and candles appeared in dorm windows, and packages were found under miniature trees in many dorm rooms. Christmas cheer was spread by organizational Christmas and caroling parties. The Christmas star shone from atop the library, and students joined in the cafeteria and dormitory decorating. Also included in the Christmas activities was the annual Christmas Concert given by the Singers and the Stage Band.

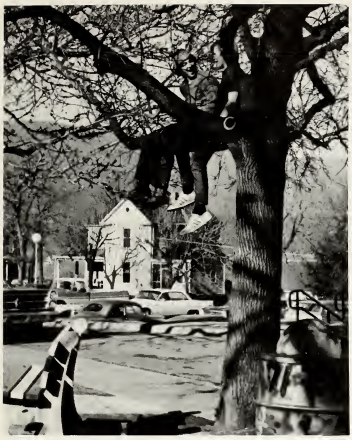
P.S.C. is represented at Alpine Festival

Ann's hobbies are tennis, swimming, cheerleading, and acting; the latter two the students have seen.

Sophomore Ann Wilson, a drama major, is Potomac State's Alpine Princess to compete for the title of Queen at the twelfth annual Tucker County Alpine Festival in February.

Ann is involved in many activities on the Potomac State campus.



Ed Given and Lee Cabell do some girl watching.

Students create recreational fun

Playing football on the campus lawn, participating in intramurals, and having snowball battles were just a few of the "fun" recreational games students enjoyed in their spare time. Tournaments were held in pocket billards and table tennis. The champions were Tom Vandevander and Randy Durst, who went on an all expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C., January 29-30, to represent the college in each division.

Intramurals allow student spectators to become participants.

Prof. Michael, Dr. Whitehill, and Prof. Malone leave the stage after receiving their certificates as Outstanding Teachers.

Leon Hinkle, John Pezzanite, and Robert Amtower chat at the dinner given in honor of those making the executive dean's list.

Andrea Bilik reigns over Sweetheart Dance

Queen Andrea Bilik and her escort, Ed Harbert, get ready to dance the Queen's solo.

Pat, a physical therapy major from Bordentown, New Jersey, was elected by a faculty committee.

Pat Branagan is Apple Blossom Princess

Pat Branagan represents Potomac State as Apple Blossom Princess.

Pat is active on the campus as a Sigma, and in membership on the Panhellenic Council and W.R.A.

Miss Deborah Long is Military Ball Queen

Queen Deborah represents Potomac State College by participating in parades as a ROTC sponsor.

Sophomore Deborah Long is the ROTC men's choice for Queen.

Deborah, an English major, is an active member of the student body and is an active member in several campus organizations.

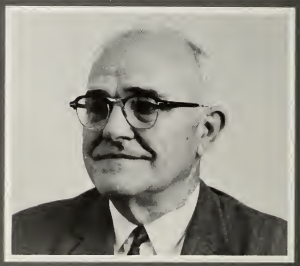
Academic staff gives P.S.C. high standing

Teachers rushed to the Union for coffee after their unresponsive eight o'clock classes and then hurried back to the classrooms for the rest of the day. The administrative staff busily processed financial papers, met prospective students, listened to student problems, and planned campus improvements. During the day these faculty and administrative members, representing a significant cross-section of the country and broad educational abilities, imparted their knowledge and experiences to the students in the classrooms and in organizational meetings. Thus went a day in the lives of the academic staff, known for making Potomac State College among the top junior colleges in the nation.

Words are often hollow. Yet we want to express our feelings. Can shock be explained? Can sorrow be expressed? Perhaps so. In memory of you, Professor Orval J. Anderson, who so ably served as chairman of our English department, we say that although all of us did not know you personally as did your students and fellow faculty and staff members, we will miss what you were — an outstanding instructor, critic, author of plays and poems, and friend. And with a thought of you we whispered "Sleep in Heavenly peace" with such a different meaning this Christmas.

Professor Orval J. Anderson
1915-1971

It would be difficult to count the number of doctors, veterinarians, dentists, nurses, engineers, and chemists now in the professional world who began their college careers in his class. Firm and patient, demanding excellence and offering help, every year he turned out students whose continuing success was proof of his abilities as a teacher. This would have been Mr. Boone's 26th year of service to P.S.C., and he would have retired in the spring, but life patterns do not always follow a calendar. As you dedicated your career to your students, we remember you, Professor Walter H. Boone, and will live with the thought of you in the years to come.



Professor Walter Herman Boone
1906-1972

Always an active member in the community and on the college campus, Mr. J. Kenna Burke devoted 23 years of his life to Potomac State College as he instructed numerous courses in sociology and political science. Adviser to many pre-law majors, who are today successful lawyers and judges both in and out of the state, Mr. Burke showed his dedication in his continuous instruction even while struggling against a terminal disease. Professor J. Kenna Burke will live in the hearts of all who knew him. He will remain forever honored among the illustrious sons of Potomac State College.

Professor James Kenna Burke
1909-1972

Potomac State remembers . . .

As president of the Alumni Association, Mr. Anderson accepts $1,000 from Attorney Ralph Bean as Mrs. Mary Coffman watches.

HOW SHALL WE HONOR THEM?

How shall we honor them, our Deathless Dead?
With strew of laurel and the stately tread?
With blaze of banners brightening overhead?
Nay, not alone these cheaper praises bring:
They will not have this easy honoring.

How shall we honor them, our Deathless Dead?
How to keep their mighty memories alive?
In him who feels their passion, they survive!
Flatter their souls with deeds, and all is said!

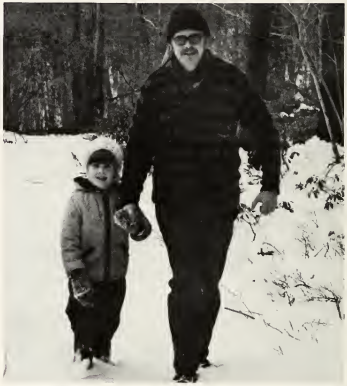
Mrs. Jeanette Vandevander, a 1971 graduate of Potomac State College, is secretary in extracurricular activities.

Special Services aids students



Mr. Lowell Markey, coordinator of the Special Student Services, takes an invigorating walk in the snow with his daughter.

A pilot program undertaken at Potomac State this year was Special Student Services made possible through a Federal grant of $45,000 and aimed at providing "intensive care" in a scholastic way for students in order to assure them of two years to make it in college. Mr. Lowell Markey served as director of the program, and there were five tutor-counselors under him who were available in the various residence buildings 24 hours a day. In addition, the Counseling Center handled clinical testing. The program was a flexible one which began with approximately 45 students. Ninety-five per cent of the group were accepted by the college to begin with, though they may have been "underachievers" whose potential indicated they could do better work. In addition to personal counseling given the students to help them select portions of a total educational program to suit individual needs, the special services program also provided assistance with career placement and financial planning.

Mrs. Frances Alt, secretary for Special Student Services, helps her daughter, Stephanie, with her crayons and coloring book.

Tutors provide help for all doctor look after students' welfare

Dr. Paul Healy, the college physician, studies a record of a patient's complaints and past history.

Mrs. Neva Taylor takes a break from her duties as school nurse and reads a book on philosophy.

Mrs. Orgie Hardy takes an interest in the care of her plants as well as in the care of the students.

Students earn class rank through study

Whispered questions for directions and help disturbed the library quiet where freshmen and sophomores feverishly studied for tests, discussions, or exams. Although classified as freshmen or sophomores on the basis of the credit hours earned, students shared the same classes depending upon their majors; and class rank became only a goal for students. Freshmen longed for the time when they would be sophomores and could make fun of the beanied freshmen and initiate them into college life and organizations. Sophomores anxiously awaited the day when their studies would result in graduation and rank as a junior in a four-year college or a good job.

Class officers get the ball rolling

The 1971-72 school year got underway as the sophomores took over their roles as heads of Student Government, clubs, and other campus organizations. They remembered their problems of the previous year as they helped the freshmen get settled in the dorms and into college life. The new class officers introduced the freshmen to Potomac State life, campus organizations, and teachers during Freshman Week. Registration was one of the first duties of the sophomores as they helped with scheduling, paying of fees, and issuing of I.D. cards. Freshman Week and Kangaroo Court were two activities which the sophomore class was in charge of enforcing. At Homecoming the sophomores were represented by their third-place, winning float and by the Queen and her attendants. As sorority and fraternity actives, sophomores started off "Hell Week" by initiating the unfortunate pledges. The Sophomore class came into the 1971-72 year with many new ideas and intentions of making their last year at Potomac State memorable.

The freshman class officers: Donald Miller, Becky Day, Dennis Bowyer, Jeny Lamonica, and Sam Lopez.

Freshmen take active part in college life

Jeny Lamonica plays baby at the Friend Hall Halloween party.

The step from adolescence to adulthood has been taken as each freshman tries to fit into the busy schedule of college life. The freshmen started their busy year with Freshman Orientation where they were introduced to the faculty, the sophomore class officers, the Student Government, and life at Potomac State College. After the shuffle of registration and the start of classes the freshmen began to settle in the mold of their new life. Freshman Week and Kangaroo Court were the final steps in inaugurating freshmen as Potomac State students. The freshman class won first place with their carving in the Halloween pumpkin contest. Hell Week, another event centered around freshmen, provided many laughs as the Greeks initiated their pledges. The newly elected officers of the freshman class began right away to make themselves heard in the Student Government and played a vital part in the running of the college. Despite the hardships of adjusting to college life the freshmen succeeded in carving a notch for themselves in the life of Potomac State College.

If you're living, you belong

Judo, the CATAMOUNT staff, the Newman Club, Band, Student Government, and various other organizations offered extracurricular work, relaxation, and enjoyment. Interest, participation, and regular attendance were the only requirements. Dorm students and commuters became better acquainted by working together in campus organizations. The campus came alive with dances, pumpkin carvings, parties, campus and environmental improvements and all the other activities the imaginative members of the clubs could think of. The organizations were where the action was, and all those living their lives to the fullest belonged to them.

Student Government abolishes Freshman Rules

The Student Government, the governing order of the Student Body, was the center of activity on campus. With its representatives from all groups and organizations, it was responsible for the management of all affairs that affected the students. Its duties were to promote school spirit and to provide for a good relationship between students and faculty. Starting at registration, the Student Government welcomed freshmen, served as guides, distributed Freshman Rules, sold beanies, and sponsored a watermelon feast and a dance in the Student Union. This year's Student Government decided to discontinue the traditional "Freshman Week." Next year, instead of devoting time to the harassment of new students, the Student Government will use this time to promote school spirit and unite the Student Body. Throughout the year the government worked on campus activities such as Homecoming weekend, student entertainment, and campus issues: intervisitation in the dorms, ID cards for admission to the Student Union, and the abolition of Saturday classes. Mr. Nuzum and Mr. Pearman served as sponsors for the group.

Paulette Woomer, Debbie Holt, and Sue Nicol help make decorations for the Homecoming dance.

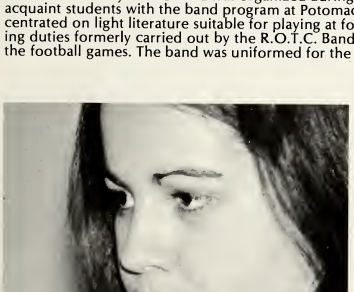
Potomac State Band takes on new look

The Potomac State Band was a credit course open to any student with previous band experience. For the second consecutive year the band was organized during Freshman Week in order to provide entertainment and to acquaint students with the band program at Potomac State. During the first quarter of the year, the band concentrated on light literature suitable for playing at football games. The band also assumed some of the marching duties formerly carried out by the R.O.T.C. Band, such as the Homecoming Parade and half-time shows at the football games. The band was uniformed for the first time with blazers purchased by the school and white trousers purchased by the students. In the second quarter the band presented a Christmas concert. In the spring the band presented a concert, went on tour to neighboring high schools, and played for the Executive's review of the R.O.T.C. Cadet Corps. The band was directed by Dr. Charles Whitehill.



Debbie Wasmer with her clarient concentrates on the notes before her as she strives for perfection in her musical selection.

Stage Band entertains in W. Va. state capital

An additional note to campus life was added by the Potomac State College Stage Band, a credit course open to students possessing the playing skills needed for performing jazz-rock music. Twice weekly rehearsals provided the members the opportunity to gain proficiency in the performance of many types of dance-band music. Several arrangers in the area as well as the director, Dr. Charles Whitehill, provided current tunes for the band to perform. During the first semester the Stage Band performed for a guidance conference held on the campus, a Future Homemakers Convention, Parents' Day, the meeting of the West Virginia Association of Colleges and Universities held in Charleston, and the annual Campus Showcase. The spring semester was highlighted by the annual spring concert and the tour to high schools in West Virginia.

Dr. Charles Whitehill keeps time as Stage Band entertains.

Singers present choral selections

The Singers, the college choral organization, was a mixed chorus open to all students by audition. The group performed both sacred and secular choral literature chosen from the works of the earliest masters to those of present day. Performance responsibilities of the Singers included the Christmas program (given in a special performance for the general public), the Spring program, and the series of tours presented to high school audiences throughout West Virginia and neighboring states. Frequently, the Singers were called on to perform at various other college programs and functions. The year's activities closed with the Singers' performance in Sermon and Commencement. Mr. Richard Davis directed the Singers, and Valerie Grayson was accompanist while Mrs. Davis was awaiting the arrival of their 'first'.

Military men earn Roth standing

The Roth Military Honorary Society was organized to recognize students enrolled in ROTC who had maintained a high scholastic standing in Military Science and in other academic endeavors and who had displayed moral integrity and showed a genuine interest in the military establishment.

During the first semester, Roth held an initiation for new members and entered a float in the Homecoming Parade. Activities in the second semester were the election of new ROTC sponsors, the invitation to freshmen members for the following year, and the sponsorship of the annual Military Ball.

ROTC Drill Team proves its proficiency

The ROTC Drill Team, under the direction of Captain Edmund F. Roleff, was heard marching around the quadrangle as they prepared for their busy fall and spring schedule. Some of their performances in the fall included the Homecoming half-time activities, the Hagerstown Alsutia Mummer's Halloween Parade, the Frostburg Jaycee's Christmas Parade, the Keyser Jaycee's Christmas Parade, and the Keyser Veteran's Day Ceremony. The spring performance included the Marshall University Invitational Drill Meet, the Meyersdale Maple Festival Parade, the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival Parade, and the Keyser High School Kelley Award Ceremony. The Drill Team's commander was Daniel Murphy, and the deputy commander was Alan Whetzel.

WV—SPIRG battles local ecological problems

Pete Kalis, West Virginia University student body president, along with Rick Franzblau, another representative from Morgantown, talks to Dan Murphy and Greg Zearfoss about the support that they have gained from Potomac State College.

West Virginia Student Public Interest Research Group, a brainchild of consumer protection leader, Ralph Nader, was introduced to the Potomac State campus this year. When enacted, students in West Virginia through student allocations will direct a full time staff of lawyers, natural and social scientists, engineeers and other professionals to work on changes in the areas of consumer protection, environmental quality, and other social problems.

The group's activities included environmental tours of Westvaco, VEPCO, and the Bloomington Dam construction area. It also sponsored the visit of ecologist "Wild Bill" Cohen, a program entitled "Westvaco and the Environment," a visit by VEPCO representatives, a visit of Nader's attorney, Davitt McAteer, and a visit by Jay Rockefeller.

Insight for Action group shows concern

Breathless, smiling faces of children at the Burlington Home and improvement in an assigned child of the Developmental Center were the rewards of the members of Insight for Action. This group, whose goal is to help people, traveled to Burlington in the fall and spring to play games with the children in the Home there. Members also gave a few hours each week to help in the Developmental Center on campus. Other activities included volunteer work at Keyser Elementary School and St. Frances School and a car wash at George's American Service Station. The group met every Wednesday with Professor William Edel as sponsor.

Amateur Radio Club provides outside contact

Contact with other amateurs, experimentation with equipment and antennas, and obtainment of amateur radio licenses were the main objectives of the hobby-oriented Amateur Radio Club. Classes in basic radio theory and morse code were planned by the members to help interested persons get their licenses. Other activities included putting up a third antenna and helping the Chess and Checker Club play over amateur radio.

The Pasquino, in its fifty-first year, informed readers of interesting campus and local news. The paper provided a "letters to the editor" column and a guest editorial column, in which the student body could express their views.

The paper appeared every two weeks except during holidays and examinations periods. It was mailed to students' parents, alumni, and friends of the college.

The Pasquino was an organ of the journalism department of which Dr. Elizabeth Atwater was adviser. Non-journalism students were able to be Pasquino members by joining the business and circulation staffs.

WRA plans and provides activities for women

Halloween goblins, Christmas trees and parties, open houses, doughnuts and coffee and fruit at exam time were some of the things provided by the Women's Residence Association for its members, all women living on campus. Friend Hall and Reynolds Hall Councils handled student government affairs pertaining to their halls. The WRA Council, composed of members from both women's dorms, strove to draw the two dorms closer together and to set up and to enforce the rules for both dormitories. The WRA Council also discussed a new constitution which would involve commuting girls in the Council.

Homemakers come up to a first-place float

Bibbed overalls, granny gowns, mini skirts, and bell bottoms revealed the span of time of Potomac State College's existence on the first-prize-winning float built by the Home Economics and Agricultural chapters for the Homecoming parade. This float along with the usual sale of mums and corsages was the Home Economics girls contribution to Homecoming. The chapter, affiliated with both the West Virginia and American Home Economics Associations, strived to promote interest in all fields of home economics in its meetings and activities. Besides the float and mum sale, the chapter sponsored a Christmas party for needy six-year-olds and provided the children with presents, games, refreshments, and a visit from Santa. The chapter went national with its election of Faye Pilling to run for secretary of the American Home Economics Association.

Circle K celebrates its 20th year

The Potomac State College Circle K Club, one of 818 clubs in the United States and Canada today, received its charter from Kiwanis International on May 14, 1952. The local club, the 33rd organized in the United States, became an international organization in 1956. Since its formation in 1952, the club has attained for itself a most reputable reputation both on the campus and in the community of Keyser. This reputation was not inherited but earned through the efforts of its members. A tradition of leadership and of service to the campus and the community has evolved for Circle K members with service the greater of these. During its 20 years of existence almost 850 Potomac State College men have lived up to the Circle K motto, "WE BUILD."

Some of this year's intramural games were bowling, volleyball, basketball, ping-pong, badminton, shuffleboard and golf.

Judo Club challenges Altoona YMCA chapter

The thumping of bodies on mats, the scraping of fingernails on judo gis and the scratching of toenails on opponent's feet were the many sounds of Potomac State's newest sport — judo. The Potomac State College Judo Club, organized last year under the direction of Mr. Ed Hartman, entered its second year with a sharp increase in membership.

After many hours of practice, the club held an intersquad match in October. On December 10 the club traveled to Altoona and met the Altoona YMCA Judo Chapter. Second semester the campus club joined the United States Judo Federation and worked towards the degrees of the belt.

Judo club champions for 1971 were: Beth Fazzalore, 105-119 weight class; Margie Anglin, 120-up; Dennis Shreve, 130-149; Bob Dewhurst, 150-169; Tom Acree, 170-189; Randall Ballard, 190-up. Women's division champion was Margie Anglin, while men's division champion was Dennis Shreve.

Social events for the members included a Halloween party and a Christmas party and caroling.

Greeks provide social and family life

Being away from home and brothers and sisters, dorm students were provided big sisters and big brothers by the Greek organizations. All one had to do was accept the bid he received from a Greek organization during Rush Week, and he became a member of that Greek family. There was no need for homesickness or loneliness with the closeness of the members of each sorority and each fraternity. Members of each Greek family were kept busy with Homecoming floats, dances, slave sales, parties, meetings, and various other activities. Sororities and fraternities, through the coordination of the Panhellenic Council, initiated new members during a designated Hell Week.

Sigma Phi Omega Honor Fraternity, a student-faculty organization, sponsored two convocations: "Know Your Organizations" was held during Freshman Week to acquaint new students with the various campus organizations and their objectives; "Recognition Day" summarized the activities of all campus groups and furnished the setting for honors and awards presented to outstanding students of the college. Other activities included the sale of Potomac State College car stickers and the annual spring banquet. Coveted membership in the organization was based on scholarship and citizenship.

The fraternity showed its school support in its Homecoming activities: election of Miss Catamount and a second-place Homecoming float. School support also was demonstrated in participation in intramurals and in the formation of the Coffee House, competition in the pumpkin-carving contest, the sponsorship of the Harvest Dance with member Brad Daugherty as King, sponsorship of the annual Christmas Dance with "Wasp" playing and special guest, Santa Claus. Social events included Purple Haze parties with bands such as "Liquid Smoke," "King Rat," "Sounds of Soul," "Addicts," "Flutter," and "Fox"; a camping trip to Smoke Hole; a trip to the Old German Brewery; Halloween and Christmas parties for the children of the Developmental Center; a slave sale of members; and a number of Smokers' parties.

Sigma Iota Chi inducts thirty pledges

The 1971 Fall Rush Party was held on September 22, with thirty pledges being received into the sorority. Certain days during Hell Week were set off as "Ugly Day," "Halloween Day," "Rat Day," and "Dress-up Day." Each day the pledges met in the Union to recite their Rat Cogitation. Hell Week ended with a scavenger hunt on Thursday night. For the Homecoming parade, the Sigmas built a float in the shape of a party favor with an anniversary card. At Thanksgiving the sorority gave a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family. Other activities included a White Elephant sale, pizza sales, a Sweetheart Ball, and the annual initiation dinner.

Team work makes the Catamounts grrreat

From the sunny but chilly days of football, to the stuffiness of the gym during basketball season, to the warm, lazy days of spring and baseball, the Catamounts were practicing and working to become undefeatable teams. Each member, although making records of his own and doing his own thing, conditioned himself to think and act, not as an individual, but as part of one whole team. Dressed in the school's colors, the players strived for team uniformity — uniformity like that of their blue and gold attire. Then as victory after victory stacked up, the result of their harmonious efforts became evident, and everyone agreed that the Catamounts had a great year.

Quarterback Eddie Williams gives signals to put the ball into play as he stands ready behind the center, Kevin Smith.

Half-back Phil Hughes tries to shake a Baltimore tackler in order to carry the football for a first down.

Coach Cecil Perkins' Catamounts finished their 1971 football season with a record of five wins against four losses. Improving over their 1-6-1 show during the 1970 season, the Cats achieved five straight wins before losing their last four. The last time the Cats ever surmounted a 5-4 season was in 1961. It has been eleven years since the Cats have had a five-game winning streak or better. In the 1959 season the men from Pot State won the last five games of their season.

The first game of the season began in Bel Air, Md., where the Cats won a not so decisive victory over Harford Junior College. The final score of the game was 21 to 14. This made victory number one for Potomac State.

On September 25, the Pot State eleven met the much favored Chowan College at Staymen Field. Little did they know that this would be number two in a row for the Cats as they downed the Braves by a score of 27 to 23.

With two victories under their belts they traveled to Dover, Delaware, as the still underrated team. But they pulled together again for victory number three and handed Wesley Junior College a defeat. The Cats reigned supreme at 22 to 14.

Victory number four floated unresistingly into Potomac State's arms as the Cats mercifully drubbed the young freshman herd from Marshall University by the tune of 57 to 0. Coach Perkins substituted freely in the second half of the game, with the only surmountable effort from the herd coming late in the last quarter when Sherwood received a pass from Marshall QB Coleman at the 50 and was downed by Phil Hughes, who overcame Sherwood's 15 yard head start at the Cats' 18 yard line.

The fifth and final victory of the season came when the Cats traveled to Rockville, Md., where Potomac State handed Montgomery Junior College a 27 to 6 setback.

The sixth game of the season ended in a loss for Potomac State as the Ferrum eleven "slid" by the Cats in a "sea of mud" at the Virginia field. The final score was fourteen to six, a small but decisive eight point lead.

With a five-one record the Cats lost their second game as the Red Devils of Baltimore Junior College crawled by 31 to 29.

In what was to be a "no contest" game for West Virginia Frosh, the Catamounts exposed their tiger claws as the Little Mountaineers edged by Potomac State 50 to 43.

At five and three, the Catamounts went into the ninth and final game hoping to top the strong Lees McRae lineup. The Cats just didn't get it together, and the L-M powerhouse made use of the fact by flushing the Cats right out of their system. The score of the finale was 49 to 20.

During the season the record of the Catamounts earned them the number ten position in the National Junior College Athletic Association ranks. The Cats last four games took them from the number ten to the number nineteen spot before being dropped from the standings.

N.J.C.A.A. Statistics

The Catamounts tied the Wesley Junior College team from Dover, Delaware, for fourth place in the conference. They both finished with records of three wins against three losses. Eddie Williams set a conference passing record with a total of three hundred ninety-eight yards.

Potomac State led in conference scoring with a total of two hundred fifty-two points. Potomac State averaged 28 points per game. Ferrum was second with two hundred forty-nine. They averaged 27.6 points per game. Potomac State gave up the most points at two hundred, with Wesley giving up the least with seventy.

Potomac State trailed in team passing, 172.5 yards, to a 197.3 show by Baltimore, and was third in total yards per game with 313.1, behind Baltimore's 389.7 and Ferrum's 346.7.

In the area of interception, Jerry Raffel and Danny Doleman tied with J. Mudd of Lees-McRae for second place as they each had five. They were outdone by the lone Nash of Baltimore, who had six. Doleman missed half of the season.

Hughes and Skinner were among the pass receiving leaders, Hughes pulling in 33 and Skinner 31, the latter having 505 yards to Hughes 454.

Hughes ranked second in kick-off returns with 10 for 259 yards, behind Baltimore's Rucci who had 16 for 468 yards.

Phil Hughes, assisted by Steve Stinson, raises the score seven more points.

Eddie Williams works on his 398 yard per game conference record.

Coach Perkins calls for more action!

Phil Hughes goes over the goal line to score another touchdown for P.S.C.

Eddie Williams follows through and gets ready to pass to end, Mike Skinner.

Jerry Black zeros in for two points against W.V.U. freshmen.

"Cal" Harbert moves in for the kill.

Craig Redman moves in for a rebound.

Cats win a few, lose a few in '71-72 season

Potomac State opened its basketball season with a 85-79 victory over Shenandoah College. Jerry Black was high scorer with 17 points with four other members scoring in double figures. The Cats continued their winning ways by bombing Montgomery Junior College by a score of 90-67. It wasn't three in a row for P.S.C. when after a bad break they lost to Altoona 79-76. Two nights later Allegany Community College found the Cat offense vulnerable in the second half and fought back from a fifteen-point deficit to succumb the Cats, 76-74. The basketmen came through with a tighter defense in the Hagerstown Junior College match to give P.S.C. a 57-47 victory. Despite a 31-point performance by Black, Altoona got their revenge in our second match with them with a 92-88 score over the Cats. Coach Bolyard substituted liberally against the weak Kirkland Hall squad giving the Cats their fourth win with a 100-47 score. Allegheny of Pittsburgh was under the paw of the Cat for the entire game as Potomac State won with a 91-81 score. W.V.U. freshmen met the enemy, the Cats, when they journeyed to Potomac State with a 80-68 victory for the Little Mountaineers. Allegany did it again with the Catamounts suffering a 81-67 defeat. As if two in a row wasn't bad enough, the W.V.U. freshmen made it three consecutive defeats for P.S.C. with a 79-51 score. P.S.C. ended its losing steak with a walloping 94-62 victory over Charles County. The rally continued when P.S.C. made its highest point total of the year against Montgomery of Rockville with a 101-93 win. Games with Anne Arundel, West Point Academy, Essex, Catonsville, Wesley, Shenandoah, Ohio Valley, and Allegheny of Pittsburgh were yet to be played at the time of this printing.

Ken Halstead puts the Cats on the offensive.

Anthony Fragale is on the move.

Larry Amodio demonstrates his typical hustle.

Local merchants support CATAMOUNT

Yearbooks, shoes, clothes, pizzas, gas, snacks, school supplies, and diamonds were just a few of the products provided the students by the merchants of the tri-state area. Campus and studies were left behind as students visited downtown Keyser or Cumberland stores to browse and shop for the one special item that they needed or desired. Local merchants and store clerks heartily greeted college people with friendly, courteous service and made them feel at home by cashing personal checks. Students supported the surrounding businesses through their purchases of merchandise, and these businesses in return showed their support of Potomac State College through the purchase of advertisements in the 1972 CATAMOUNT.

Ronda Simmons and Nan Smith spend their free time browsing through Pulliam Music's wide variety of albums.

Students face the foggy future

Another winter term at Potomac State College ended. The students stepped on into their uncertain, foggy futures. The men and women that came together in August, 1971, grew and changed, experienced life and death, and went forth to face the future and infinity. The school year 1971-72 was filled with victories, learning, disappointments, and sadness, which the Catamount Staff recorded in pictures and copy. The staff hereby wishes to thank the faculty and staff for their cooperation, and to thank all those who, in any way, contributed to the publication of this book. A special thanks goes to Mrs. Coffman, Mrs. Golden, Dr. Atwater, and Brady Miller for their help.
